

Advising

New students are assigned a Student Development Coordinator and a faculty advisor upon admission. Their names can also be found in DegreeWorks. The Student Development Coordinators assist all new and health science students in selecting their major and their courses and in developing an academic plan. Faculty advisors and Student Development Coordinators work together to help students set goals, develop a clear path for graduation, and access sources of support. For help deciding on a major or career path, reach out to advisor@hgtc.edu.
